One of the reasons why I always look for tools to help me in controlling my pc memory is that I always wish to speed up the computer I use and this application will do just that. Firstly I found this application just through a Google search and it proved to me as very helpful. The program allows you to detect any programs that are using up lots of your memory. It displays your current physical memory and you can set a percentage so that when it detects your physical memory is being used by one of your applications then it will automatically start to clear that memory back to the disk so that it can make room for new memory. It will monitor all of the programs that are running in the background and it will warn you if one of those programs are using too much memory, and it will show you what program is using the most memory so that you can decide if it is one of your program or just some external program. You can change it to any percentage that you want as well so you can find what percentage suits you best for your usage. You can also click the "Start" button to automatically clear all of your application's memory. If you think that your physical memory is being used up then this is a great program to use as it will allow you to quickly clear your memory, you can also stop your computer from running out of memory. I found the setup to be very simple and straight forward and it did not take to long to install it. I was really surprised that I found this on Google as it did not have a full website but I was glad that I found this application. AUTO MEMORY

Keymacro is a free tool that allows you to memorize macros in the Windows keypad. It could be seen as a powerful alternative to keystrokes, especially for people that do not use the Windows keypad as much as others. This app allows you to memorize keystrokes or shortcuts by creating and saving a custom macro. The basic functionality is as easy as that: launch Keymacro, type your shortcut or the longitude of the key you want to memorize, select the number of times you wish to repeat this shortcut, and then click the 'save' button. It is worth noting that you can memorize not only keyboard shortcuts but also mouse actions, thanks to the 'mouse actions' tab in the options.

Once memorized, you can access these shortcuts through the 'Keymacro' option of the options menu, or through the shortcut popup. Keymacro can memorize both keyboard shortcuts and the Windows keyboard shortcuts, but it does not remember the combination of both. Keymacro was created by an independent developer, and it is not affiliated with any well-known developer.

KEYMACRO Pros: Allows you to memorize a keyboard shortcut Allows you to memorize a mouse action Easy to use

Cons: No support for memorizing shortcuts No support for memorizing mouse actions No support for memorizing multiple shortcuts There is no integration with any tool

KEYMACRO is a fully functional and well-designed app that provides a useful tool for those that need to memorize their computer shortcuts.

KEYMACRO is not a simple tool: you are not going to click 'Save' and see your new keyboard shortcut appear. Rather, you need to check whether you saved the correct combination, and in which menu you're going to find it. If you'd like to learn more about the app, the manual is available. It is a pretty basic tool, but it is well-made and does its job well. KEYMACRO is one of those apps that could become useful for some, but others won't find it to their liking.

SugarSync - File Synchronizer is the first and most popular cloud service that synchronizes files online and allows users to access them from anywhere. This app is not for beginners, since you have to have at least a certain level of understanding of computer systems. If you do not know what cloud services are, do not bother with this app 1d6a3396d6
